STEFANO PASSEROTTI AND ANNA PIUSSI:
FROM ORTICOLARIO TO THE BRONZE MEDAL AT THE CHELSEA FLOWER SHOW

Orticolario's "brave gardener" Stefano Passerotti and the garden designer Anna Piuksi take part, with their "The Sonic Pangea Garden" project, in the hundredth edition of London's Chelsea Flower Show, one of the world's most important floriculture events, and... win the Bronze Medal!

The design, created by Passerotti – who coordinated the group of creative artists at Orticolario 2012 – and by Anna Piuksi – last year's winner in the "Best Garden Layout" category, forms part of a restricted shortlist of proposals admitted to the Chelsea Flower Show for the "Fresh Gardens" section, dedicated to the most original and unprecedented works.

"The Sonic Pangea Garden" is inspired by classical myth: it is an enchanted forest carpeted with plants. A clearing in the sacred grove reveals an altar to the woodland God, Pan, and a circular chaise-longue, sacred to Gaia, Mother Earth.

And not only that, the soundtrack to "The Sonic Pangea Garden" is by the composer Francesco Mantero, who created the Soundtracks to Orticolario 2012 and won a special mention.

The structures of the chaise-longue and the altar, on the other hand, are created by the company FDM F.lli Mazzola, which regularly collaborates with Orticolario and which, with the iFlame brand, presents at each edition innovations on bio-torches in the designs by Francesco Mazzola.

At Orticolario 2013, in fact, iFlame will be the creator of the atmospheres of "Water and Fire in the Harbour".

The fifth edition of Orticolario will be held from 4 to 6 October in Villa Erba, on Lake Como, and will entice visitors to commit – relentlessly and without remorse - "Sinful indulgencies in the garden".
